The aim of this training program is to provide the holistic understanding regarding team dynamics, team player styles, and the ability to recognize characteristics associated with both functional and dysfunctional teams. So the focus is to ignite the mind of officers regarding practices through which they can use their head and hearts to maximize the performance of their teams.

Accordingly with the goal of mapping out a personal portrait of leaders’ strengths and opportunities for improvement, this training program will allow officers to enhance their listening and conflict management skills, identify the behaviors associated with high-trust leaders, and integrate higher levels of emotional intelligence into every interaction with team members. This one week Training programme is planned exclusively for those IFS officers whose names appear in the list of trainees provided by sponsoring ministry for this event.
